LARGE DIVIDEND OF INSURANCE.

The Piedmont Life Insurance Company, of Virginia, has

on its Life Policies, which have paid two annual premiums, and the same is available on such policies at next renewal to absorb loans, or reduce such payments.

The dividend would have safely been larger, but with the which has ever guided this company, it has deemed it proper to hold a surplus beyond the reserve fund.

The company is now only in the eighteenth month of its active operation—yet

HAS ISSUED 3,000 POLICIES

R. P. WARING, Editor.

CHARLOTTE.

Tuesday, August 31, 1869.

The branch of the W. C. & R. R. R. from Lincolnton to Newton has a potential advocate in our neighbor of the Democrat. Mr. Yates with his usual sagacity sees the advantage to result from this connection to Charlotte and at once opens in its favor. Catawba is one of the richest counties in the Piedmont region, and now trades considerably with this city, but would do so in a much greater degree if this branch were built. Let us go to work in earnest, relying upon ourselves, and talk less of bringing in Northern capital and Northern muscle. We have the best country in the world and the very men to improve it. Then, why are we overanxious to share its advantages with others, particularly with those who will reap its benefits at our expence? We were never over anxious for Northern immigration. It might benefit the few but it would be positively injurious to the many. Let us put our own shoulders to the wheel before we call so lustily on Hercules for help. We want this road with several others built, and we can do it ourselves. In less than eight months money will be cheap enough, because it will be abundant, and then every branch of industry will prosper. Small farms and excessive crops would lower the price of staples, and thus, reduce the amount of money brought into the country, instead of increasing it. We wish our trade to extend, and by opening up new avenues it will do so, and not by selling the land and increasing the population. Our people have stopped leaving, so we'll want our land for our own native population, and in the next few years, we will increase much faster than in any given period before the war. So soon all the vacant spots will be taken up by those "who are natives here and to the manner born."

The President and Cabinet constitute a galaxy of shooting-stars. We are scarcely astronomerous enough to indicate exactly to which system they belong. Sometimes they shine very benignedly on the Southern and sometimes on the Northern hemisphere, but at no time long enough for their genial rays to impart sufficient warmth to indicate the season. They are as erratic as meteors, but not so brilliant, and at their present rate of traveling will wander so far from the centre as to be numbered among the lost pleiades.

A Probable Sensation Report.

The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger writes:

"Gentlemen who profess to represent the interests of the Cuban Junta in this city profess to be very jubilant about some news which they profess to have just received. What it is is a secret they keep to themselves; but they condescend to assure us that things here now taken such a turn diplomatically as to leave no doubt that by Christmas next the ever faithful isle will be its own master, and freed from the domination of the detested Dons.

"All this, now, is rather Delphic; but some of the long-head gentry in Wall street interpret it as an indication that there 'must be something' in the cable rumors about a treaty at Madrid for the cession of the island to the United States. They think it quite likely, moreover, that the Cubans here may be in receipt, per cable, of important intelligence that nobody else has, inasmuch as Mr. Sickles is known to be on intimate terms with some of them. In any event, at the next cabinet meeting at Washington the expectation is that the country will be treated to a first class sensation."

Dana on Grant.

The New York Sun says:

"It is rumored that President Grant proposes to make a visit to Washington City some time this week, and that as a day's rambling among the relics of the deserted capital, he will leave again for some other part of the globe. It is also rumored that some of his fellow-tenants of the Cabinet are to meet him on some of the public squares (the White House not being inhabited), to hold what is commonly called a Cabinet council when, it is surmised, it will be unanimously proposed to hire an omnibus with a view of redeeming the weary wanderers at the depot. In the absence of the naval authorities, the idea of a sea journey seems to have been abandoned, and hence the necessity of concerting public measures for the prosecution of the journey by land."

Letter from Washington.

Correspondence of the Baltimore Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27, 1869.

As the object of Stokes and his gang in their visit to this, the nominal seat of Government, has been variously stated by correspondents at this point, I deem it proper to sustain my own statement made some days ago, by inserting an announcement authorized by the great defeated himself. Referring to the report that he is here merely in the interest of office-seekers, it is officially stated as follows:

"General Stokes is here for no such purpose. He has made no appeal to the Administration in the interest of any aspirant for office, however worthy. He is in Washington to take counsel with his friends in regard to the alarming condition of Tennessee, soon to revert, by a system of unparalleled frauds, into the control of the rebel Democracy, and especially in regard to the new perils surrounding the Union men of the State."

Every one knows what this stuff means. The direct interference by the General Government in the purely domestic affairs of Tennessee is aimed at. That there is great danger of the success of the scheme is manifest. It is true that Grant's Administration has no more lawful right to reduce Tennessee to a military satrapy than Massachusetts. But when will people thoroughly understand that the absence of "lawful right" to do a thing is no impediment whatever to the doing of it in the estimation of the dominant party? The question of expediency alone is considered by these "earnest men" as worthy of the least thought. Senter, I see it stated, has told some "interviewer" that he does not visit the Capitol to talk with Grant of danger to the interigity of his perfectly "reconstructed" State. Well said. He should not, before being informed of some contemplated direct official order tending to the overthrow of the present status of Tennessee, admit in such public manner even the probability of so glaring an outrage! But, if it be meant in the account of the "interview" to have it inferred that he does not personally apprehend a powerful movement to render, in some form, the recent election in Tennessee, utterly fruitless, then I have authority for saying Mr. Senter has been very grossly misunderstood.

In the absence of more practical matters for discussion, the papers here and elsewhere are amusing themselves and the public by debating the question of the removal of the capital upon constitutional grounds. It would be idle, I suppose, to suggest that all that can be said upon this subject, in its legal bearing, has long since been said by accomplished constitutional lawyers. But some old fogies have thought proper to revive arguments, which, when urged, had some weight, as the Constitution had then some vitality! To steal arguments and use them gravely as if the subject were entirely new, is bad enough; but to steal such arguments, at a crisis in our political affairs, when the Constitution is not only ignored, but absolutely unpopular, is a "stupid blunder," which "Occasional" says is worse than a "culpable crime."

Washington is doomed to remain the capital of our "glorious" and "unanimous" Union until some other unfortunate locality shall be fixed upon to suffer in its stead. Herein lies its "safety," as some call it. The abstract question of "removal" could be carried the first day of the next session of Congress—notwithstanding all the revamped constitutional objections—but, happily (or the reverse), the more important and more troublesome question of its successor has precedence. Some think also, that if it could be broadly put to the American people whether we should turn our "Republic" into an "Empire" (so surfeited are they with Radical rule), that the question would be decided in the affirmative by a very "respectable" if not "overwhelming" majority. On the other hand, if the "Great Grant" himself were put up for "Emperor," I doubt if he could get (the Dents deducted) 126 votes in the whole country!

No! The enemies of Washington must go another way to work before there is real danger. They must mix up the "removal" with the peculiar views of the Yankee rulers of the nation. Western towns are nowhere. Whenever the city of Charleston (and its immense advantages as a national metropolis) are fairly brought into view the city of "magnificent distances" may tremble. A few of these "advantages" may now be noted. 1. As the very cradle of the rebellion, where the Confederate ensign was first hoisted, let "the Flag of the Union" forever wave, from an established Capitol of a free and regenerated nation so that unborn millions may be reminded in all time of the degradation of those who sought the nation's life, and of the magnanimity of those who swore that life to save! (This will bring in all the Collazions.) 2 No city in the broad and universal Union offers so sure a prospect of everlasting negro municipal rule as Charleston and its surrounding stolen plantations. Washington is becoming fishy upon this point. This article will bring in all the Sumner men. 3 The "Burnt District" and other dilapidated and torn down quarters of the city offer the greatest inducements to speculators in "town lots" and sites for magnificent palaces for enterprising members of Congress.

This article, the influence of which cannot be exaggerated, must needs bring to the support of "removal" at least forty votes in either House of our Grand National Legislature. 4. Besides, see the distance of travel to the lakes and the perquisites! These considerations, of ocurse, will decide our economical Administration. But I forbear. Let others more interested dilate at large upon the Radical advantages of this selection!

I learn to-day that if ever, or whenever, the flying Cabinet reaches Washington, with the President at their head, some definite action will be taken in respect to the Cuban insurrection. It is known here that the offer to buy the island has been flatly rejected, or rather refused to be entertained at all. The measures of the Government, it is therefore thought, will be decidedly more favorable to the insurrectionists, or "patriots," as they are beginning again to be dubbed by the Radical press. Hence the higher tone lately observable among the friends of Cuban independence.

Catholic Nunneries.

The details given in reference to the horrible discovery of an imprisoned nun at Cracow, and the public indignation aronsed thereby, are supplemented by Austrian correspondents of the Times.

The story is that the nun Barbara Abryk was born in the year 1817, that she joined the convent of barefooted Carmelite nuns in 1841, and that in 1848 she was shut up in the place where she was found the other day. Thus for twenty-one years did these miserable women keep their dreadful secret. The nunnery is described as situated in one of the prettiest faubourges of Cracow, near the Botanical Gardens, a favorite resort of the citizens. Any one within could communicate in a few minutes with the authorities of a large city, or with men of liberal principles and resolute will who would not have allowed such a scandal to remain unexposed. But the Carmelites kept their own counsel.

We are told that after she had been found in a cell between the dining-room, and the cloaca, and in the fearful state already known—

The officer immediately ordered a chemise to be given to the wretched creature, and himself went to fetch the bishop. At the sight of the poor sufferer the Bishop was deeply moved called the nuns together, and, reproaching them violently for their inhuman treatment, said, "Is this your sisterly love? Is this the way you think to come to heaven? Furies, not women." And when they would have excused themselves,—"Silence, miserable ones! you who disgrace religion, away from my sight."

He suspended them, and then the confessor and the lady superior talked of breaking up the nunnery, and sent Barbara to be clothed and fed. While she was being led away, she asked, anxiously, "Won't they take me back again to my grave?" and inquired why she was shut up there. "I have broken my vows, but these, these"—darting wildly round and glaring furiously on the Sisters—"are no angels." Then, springing at the confessor, she shrieked, "You beast."

On examination the lady superior said she had shut up Barbara on the doctor's recommendation in 1848. The present doctor, who has held the position seven years, stated that he had never even seen Barbara once.

In the evening the poor creature became wilder, and it was settled to move her next day to the madhouse. On Friday, therefore, the 23d, the commission came again to take her away. On seeing the sunlight and green grass of the convent garden she convulsed with extreme joy, and when one of the Sisters who accompanied her to the gate ran out, when the others turned back, embraced and kissed her, she was so touched with the strange sympathy that she implored the author of it to come away with her, and incessantly called for her afterwards on the road. The fresh air was too much for her, and during the journey she fainted.

In her new home Sister Barbara was provided with everything comfortable; but at first she kept frequently rising from her bed to lie on the bare floor, as she had been used. Since being properly washed and dressed the wildness has quieted down, and the doctors have hopes of eventually restoring her to her senses.

In the mainwhile, from the time of the first visit of the officer, the knowledge of this awful revelation began to spread abroad and create a sensation of indignant horror thoughout the whole town. On Friday morning hundreds of people had assembled before the convent, smashed all the windows, and crying, 'Away with the nuns," had already broken into the interior, when a body of soldiers arrived in time to protect them. On Saturday the same thing was repeated, in spite of the adjurations of the papers to the people to wait calmly. By the evening two detachments of soldiers had been called out, for the mob, which had swelled to 4,000 people, after doing what more mischief it could to the Carmelite convent, went off to attack that of the Jesuits and that of the Franciscans. It was a critical hour for the whole monastic orders of Cracow. The Jesuit rector was insulted, many Jesuits wounded with stones, and every pane of glass in the monastic house was broken to pieces. For these manifestations of their indignation an immense number of people have been arrested, but a large petition has been sent up to the Town Council to remove the Jesuits and Carmelites out of Cracow.

Far into Sunday morning the disturbances were still going on; later in the day the lady superior and her assistant were taken under a military escort to be kept inward, in order to appease the people. Soldiers, however, still patrol the town.

The Vienna paper asks, "And, is this the nineteenth century?"

We are glad, says the London Record, to observe that the feelings of horror excited by the accounts of the cruel treatment of a nun in the Carmelite Convent of Cracow, has found Parliamentary expression by Sir Robert Anstruther's notice in the House of Commons that early next session he will "call attention to the number of conventual and monastic institutions in this country, and move a resolution, that, in the opinion of the House, those institutions should be subjected to inspection."

"Eternal activity is the price of party living, and the road behind is strewn with carcasses of the factions which could not see that in politics of dead principle is a mere prejudice—nauseous to the people."

Thus says Mr. John Quincy Adams. It is a lesson for all parties at this time.

Fanny Fern says: "If one-half of the girls knew the previous lives of the men they marry, the list of old maids would be wonderfully increased." Whereupon the Boston Post asks: "If the men knew what their future lives were to be, wouldn't it increase the list of old maids still further?"

A young man in Newburyport, Mass., prepared for his wedding, which was to have taken place on Sunday last, by purchasing a barrel of beer for his friends. The remorseless State Constable, however, seized the beer, and the young man actually refused to have the wedding performed unless he could have the liquor. The lady in the case is consequently experiencing the pain of hope deferred.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Yesterday morning about 6 o'clock Mr. J. M. Duryea came to his death under the following circumstances: Mr. Duryea was engaged in cleaning and repairing a pistol for the use of his brother, who contemplated a trip in the country. While engaged in fixing the pistol, his brother, who was in an adjoining room, heard the pistol drop on the floor, and a discharge followed. He rushed into the room and found his brother lying on the floor with the pistol near him. He was shot through the head, the ball entering under the chin and emerging under the left eye, producing almost instant death.

The Wandering Jew.

The legend of the Wandering Jew is a famous one, which has been told in many languages and many forms. In a recent book, "Myths of the Middle Ages," will be found a full account of the growth of the legend, which is curious enough to be always fresh and interesting:

When the Jews were dragging Jesus forth from Pilate's judgment hall, and had reached the door, Cartaphilus, a porter in Pilate's service, as Jesus was going out of the door, impiously struck him on the back, and said in mockery, "Go quicker, Jesus, go quicker! Why do you loiter?" And Jesus, looking back on him with a serene countenance, said to him, "I am going, and you shall wait till I return." And accordingly, as our Lord said, this Cartaphilus is still awaiting his return. At the time of our Lord's suffering he was thirty years old, and when he attains the age of one hundred and thirty he always returns to the same age he was when our Lord suffered. After Christ's death, when the Catholic faith gained ground, this Cartaphilus was baptized by Ananias, who also baptized St. Paul, and was called Joseph.

Of this Joseph, the Armenian bishop went on to say that he dwelt in Armenia and the East, greatly affected the society of bishops and prelates, was circumspect, silent, and charitable, and did not speak except when he was spoken to, and then only to tell of Christ's death, suffering and resurrection. He was very tenacious as to the character and rank of his questioners, and very indifferent in the matter of gifts, food and raiment. Of the Jews, or his double, Mr. Marring Gould gave many and various accounts from the Netherlands, from Bohemia and from Arabia, where he seems to have passed for Elijah, but none of these present any considerable discrepancy from the account of the Armenian bishop, until we come to the testimony of Paul Von Eitzen, Doctor of the Holy Scriptures and Bishop of Schleswig, who declared that when he was young, in the winter of 1547, A. D., "on Sunday, in church, he observed a tall man, with his hair hanging over his shoulders, standing barefoot during the sermon, over against the pulpit, listening with deepest attention to the discourse; and whenever the name of Jesus was mentioned, bowing himself profoundly and humly, with sighs and beating of the breast. He had no other clothing in the bitter cold of winter except a pair of hose, which were in tatters about his feet, and a coat with a girdle which reached to his feet; his general appearance was that of a man of fifty years.

After church the Doctor obtained an interview with the stranger, and elicited information which, though more circumstantial than the Armenian bishop's story, differed from it materially. The Jew gave his name as Ahasuerus, and professed that he had been an unbelieving cobbler at the time of the crucifixion. Gazing from his doorstep at the sad procession to Calvary he had tried to curry favor with the Jews by hurrying Jesus forward, when he fain would have rested a moment from his heavy burden. Jesus looking upon him rebuked him in the words, "I shall stand and rest, but thou shall go to the last day."

The doom presently began to work. He was constrained to go forth into foreign lands, and revisiting Jerusalem after the lapse of years found not one stone left standing on another. In this account, as in others, great stress is laid on the Jew's never smiling; and in Von Eitzen's narrative he is made to interpret the purpose of God in this judgment upon him, and to confirm the truth of his tale of many wanderings by submitting to have his knowledge of Eastern geography and history tested by the Rector of the Hamburg University. Another new feature is his strong indignation at profane use of Christ's name.

This was in 1547. He is spoken of at Madrid and Vienna in the same century, but as the world waxes older, writers evince a care to say little of him on their personal testimony. Bulinger, in his history of his own time, takes especial pains to guard himself against the suspicion of belief in the story. In 1640 two burghers of Brussels fall in with this ubiquitous Jew, or one who answers his description, and (it does not exactly appear why) conclude that their companion is "Isaac Laquedom, the Jew who would not let Christ rest on his doorstep," [p. 21.] He turns up in London at the beginning of the eighteenth century, and seems to have won the ear of the ignorant, but only the ridicule of the wealthy. The curious, however, would appear to have questioned him pretty rigidly over a range of history extending from the crucifixion to the crusades. He did not think much of Arabic history, he professed acquaintance with Mohammed and his father, and said he was sojourning in Rome when Nero set it on fire.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A book by General Lee will awaken such special interest, that we are glad to call attention to it. The UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING COMPANY of No. 4 Bond Street, New York, announce that they have now in press, and will issue in a few weeks, "Memoirs of the War," by Gen. Henry Lee, thoroughly revised and corrected by Gen. R. E. Lee who has added, also, an entirely new biography of his father, prepared by him from private and personal materials never before used. It will be a large and handsome octavo volume, illustrated by new steel portraits of Gen. Henry Lee and Gen. Nathaniel Greene; beautiful steel engravings of "Marion Crossing the Pedee," and the "Surrender of Cornwallis," and five original maps and plans. Our readers need not be told that this is a work of great interest and value. It is the standard history of military operations at the South during the revolutionary war, and as such is a book which every reading man should possess, but its interest and value are both greatly increased by Gen. Robert E. Lee's thorough revision and correction, and by the valuable biography of his father which he has written and added to it.

We are sure that this announcement, alone, is sufficient to give the book a very great sale, but when we add that Gen. Lee is personally interested in its publication, such a sale is made certain.

As we learn that the book is to be sold by canvassing agents only, those who desire to engage in its sale should make early application to the publishers.

A Regular Habit of Body.

Is absolutely essential to physical health and clearness of intellect. Nor is this all. Beauty of persons cannot co-exist with an unnatural condition of the bowels. A free passage through these natural waste pipes, is as necessary to the purity of the body as the free passage of the offal of a city through its sewers is necessary to the health of its inhabitants.

Indigestion is the primary cause of most of the diseases of the discharging organs, and one of its most common results is constipation. This complaint, besides being dangerous in itself, has many disagreeable concomitants,—such as an unpleasant breath, a swallow skin, contaminated blood and bile, hemorrhoids, headache, loss of memory, and general debility.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS remove all these evils by removing their immediate cause in the digestive organs, and regulating the action of the intestines. The combination of properties in this celebrated preparation is one of its chief merits. It is not merely a stimulant, or a tonic, or an anti-bilious agent, or a nervine, or a blood depurent, or a cathartic, but all these curative elements judiciously blended in one powerful restorative. It lends activity and vigor to the inert and enervated stomach, relieves the alimentary canal of its obstructions, and gives tone to the membrane which lines it, gently stimulates the liver, braces the nerves, and cheers the animal spirits. No other remedy possesses such a variety of hygienic virtues. It is to these characteristics that it owes its prestige as a household medicine. Experience has proved that it is as harmless as it is efficacious, and hence it is as popular with the weaker sex as with the stronger.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is sold in bottles only, and the trade-mark blown in the glas and engraved on the label, with one steel engraved revenue stamp over the cork, is the test of genuineness. Beware of counterfeits.

Yesterday about the hottest hour of the day, Sprinkles "cup-bearer" invaded our office bearing a fluid artistically compounded and so flavored as to please the pallet and allay the thirst. Candor compels us to say, we like to be "sprinkled" in that way and we apprehend that many others are of the same way of thinking. This was the genuine article, and no mistake.

There is a curious bit of news from China. The Emperor is said to have warned Prince Alfred that when he visits Pekin he cannot expect to be received by the Imperial family on terms of equality. Whether his Celestial Majesty has been informed of his Royal Highness's carryings on—in Australia especially—we do not know. A more interesting inquiry just now is, What will Prince Alfred do about it? The most obvious course—though even this would be rather humiliating would be to go somewhere else. But whatever his Royal Highness does, it is to be hoped he will neither give nor take any presents.—Tribune.

An individual the other day went to one of the drug stores in Boston and called for a pint of whiskey, claiming that he wanted to put it on some roots for medicine. He obtained the whiskey, and immediately raised the bottle to his lips and imbibed a grown person's dose of the ardent. The drug clerk remonstrated with the customer for his duplicity, and was informed that it was the roots his tongue for which he desired the whiskey.

The leather and hide trade of Nashville has rapidly increased since the war. The Nashville butchers take off about ten thousand hides a year, and nearly that number of Texas and Mexican hides arrive there during the same period. There were three hundred and seventy tanners in Tennessee before the war, and more than five times as much leather was made then as now.

THE HOTTEST DAY.—The hottest day on record in many places on the Atlantic side of the United States was Saturday last, the 21st of August. Not in New York, where the highest degree of the heat was only 95, but in some other places, Philadelphia, for instance, where the mercury in the shade for a time marked 104, and Washington, where it rose to 105.—Such great heats, extending over a wide section, produce great changes, and so it is probable that from the heated term of Thursday, Friday and Saturday last the backbone of the summer is broken.

PARLOR HEATERS,

COOKING STOVES,

COOKING RANGES,

HOT-AIR FURNACES, &c.

S. B. SEXTON'S CELEBRATED

PATENT BALTIMORE PARLOR HEATERS

for Anthracite or Bituminous coal, have been in successful operation for the last ten years, and have proved to be the best Fire-place Heaters manufactured and put in operation. They are getting to be generally used, often in the place of furnaces, for heating the lower and upper rooms in dwellings and offices. Two or three Stoves heating the largest dwellings, and besides, are quite ORNAMENTAL and ILLUMINATING, having all the beauty and cheerfulness of an open grate fire, but are more ECONOMICAL, CLEANLY, and RADIATING A LARGER AMOUNT OF HEAT. We can refer to thousands of families who have them in use.

We manufacture our own COOKING STOVES, and we guarantee them to be equal to any sold for baking and cooking. We have Stoves to take in long wood and with large ovens, and are superior Stoves for baking. We are getting out some new patterns of Cooking Stoves, that will burn Bituminous coal, hard coal, or wood. They will have a beautiful finish, and will stand among the No. 1 Cook Stoves. Our Cooking Stoves are Baltimore made, and we guarantee the plates. Our Cooking Ranges are pronounced the best and cheapest in the market.—Baking of all kinds can be done in our Ranges as quickly and equally as well as in a Brick oven. We will manufacture S. B. SEXTON'S new patent Hot-Air Furnaces, warranted to burn from 20 to 70 hours with once filling.

Thankful to our friends and the public for their past favors, we solicit a continuance of their patronage.
